Read the full privacy notice at <https://qconferences.com/privacy-notice>

As such, attendees need to explicitly opt-in and to consent to communications from each sponsor individually. Sponsor leads are unique and are not shared with other sponsors. For an in-person event such as QCon San Francisco, the opt-in happens when an attendee agrees to have their badge scanned by a sponsor. At no point, are sponsors permitted to contact any attendees who have not provided an explicit opt-in. Violating this policy will be interpreted as a breach of this contract as well as a breach of GDPR and privacy laws and could result in legal action against the sponsor.

Sponsors may only scan attendee badges in their respective booth. It is not permitted for sponsors to approach attendees for badge scanning outside of their booth (including but not limited to general sessions and food and beverage areas).

If a sponsor has a sponsored speaking session, it is not permitted to make badge scanning a requirement for entering or leaving the session room or to make it appear to attendees as if it is required. However, the sponsor may collect leads on a voluntary, opt-in basis.

Should QCon San Francisco provide electronic platforms for attendees to connect before/during/after the Event (including but not limited to Slack or an Event App), it is prohibited for a sponsor to use such platforms to contact attendees without collecting their explicit opt-in permission. An attendee's mere participation on such platforms may not be interpreted as an opt-in.

Sponsors will receive access to their leads during or immediately after the event. The lead report will only include attendees who have explicitly opted-in to be contacted by that specific sponsor.

If sponsor is not GDPR-compliant, GDPR leads will be withheld.

25. Pre-Paid Access Only. Only sponsors who have paid their sponsorship in full prior to the Event will be admitted, receive access credentials and lead reports.
